

CONSTRUCTION CONNECTIONS

NEWSFLASH!

July 2, 2007

Hello Everyone!

I am the new director of the Center for Construction Excellence, and I'd like to introduce myself. My name is Julia Cordero. I come to this position with a background in construction, consulting, project management, and non-profit work. I am an avid volunteer, and I have a strong affiliation with Habitat for Humanity, whom I credit with sparking my interest in the construction trades.

I have had the good fortune to spend the past week with my predecessor, Heather Winfrey, getting to know both her and the CCE. I am impressed by the extensive network of business, industry, and labor professionals who support and contribute to the Center to make it what it has become. I look forward to working with all of you to further the mission of the Center and to bring expertise, resources, and partnerships to the community.

Our next newsletter will be coming out in September. Please feel free to send article ideas, events, and any submissions you think would be of interest.

I encourage your input and invite you to contact me at jcordero@rtc.edu or 425-235-2352 extension 5582.
